

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a system for generating household account data, expense information, which includes purchasing instrument information
5 obtained by a settlement process of a business transaction using a purchasing instrument capable for payment, is collected and household account data is generated for a user of the purchasing instrument or a household account summary of a household of the user.